

Since the dawn of time man has taken the inspiration of others and cultivated again. What if the caveman had kept the secret of fire to himself ? Humanity must be allowed to digest it's creations and discoveries for the betterment of all and the advancement of the humanities.